The N8 Policing Research Partnership

UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS

- What is the N8?
- What is the N8 Policing Research Partnership?
- Why now?
- What are we aiming to achieve?
- How do we intend to build collaborations?
- What do we hope to achieve today?

The N8 PRP's goals:

- To enable and foster high quality, independent research; and
- To facilitate research-based contributions to public debate, policing policy, governance and practice.

It aims to:

- Promote collaboration between universities and policing research users;
- Produce research that is empirically informed, conceptually rich and policy relevant;
- Deliver cross-disciplinary research excellence through all our activities;
- Maximise the impact of our research on society, through engagement with external (non-academic) partners.

Aims of the workshop

UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS

- (a) Share contemporary policy and practice of police community engagement, identifying current challenges and opportunities as well as exploring its purposes and future prospects;
- (b) Consider opportunities for research into community engagement and neighbourhood policing that address the goals and priorities of police and partners;
- (c) Serve as a platform for future collaboration that builds links between universities, police and partners and establishes a network of community engagement champions across northern police forces.
